CHARLES M. WILSON, Trustee.
March 28, 1901-4t.

W. J. Duncan, of near Gamma, has two ewes that have 7 lambs. One ewe is the proud mother of 4 and the other of 3. The lambs are strong and healthy and Mr. Duncan expects all kinds of wool off of them within the next few years, at regular McKinley Prices.

Mr. Rogers, of the firm of Algermissen & Rogers, this city, returned the latter part of last week from St. Louis where he went to vote. He states that he got to vote on his own name without any trouble, but that four other men of his ward who had lived there ten years, who presented themselves to vote at the same time he did were refused the right to vote. Four "Indians" had already been there and voted on the registered names of the men who were entitled to vote. The four honest voters were shoved out and told to go or they would be arrested for disturbing the peace. And yet there are people here who say, oh no, the Nesbit law is all right.

Bits of Wisdom.

Knox Appointed.

President McKinley has appointed P. C. Knox, of Pittsburg, Pa., Attorney General to succeed Griggs resigned. Mr. Knox is a very able lawyer and he will make a strong man among the members of McKinley's cabinet.

FUNSTON'S GREAT ACHIEVEMENT.

How Other Generals, Besides Aguineldo, have been Wanted and Some Captured.

General Funston's achievement in capturing Aguineldo recalls earlier attempts made by officers of other armies to make prisoners of the leaders of hostile forces. The first attempt at seizing a general was never carried out; it involved too many persons, and the plotters engaged in it worked from the inside, not from without, as Funston did, and their plans were overheard. This was the attempt in June, 1777, to seize Washington in New York; the plan was changed later to an attempt to poison him. The plans of the conspirators were overheard by a woman, who disclosed them to the American authorities, and as a result the men implicated were captured and punished, one of them, Private Thymas Hickey, of Washington's bodyguard, being hanged.

After Arnold's treason and his flight to the British, the Americans made an attempt to seize him. This undertaking was like General Funston's exploit. Sergeant Champe, of Lee's legion, was the principal actor in the scheme. His plan was known only to the chief in command; so when he deserted to the British his late comrades fired upon him, and he reached the enemy's line under a shower of bullets, narrowly escaping with his life. This was an excellent introduction to the British, and Champe was received with open arms. But he was unsuccessful; Arnold moved his headquarters the day on which Champe had arranged to capture him, and Champe had finally to desert from the English and return, again under fire, to our lines. When Washington wished soon after to promote him for his gallantry, he found that Champe had died of disease.

The capture of the British general, Prescott, in July, 1777, was perhaps the first successful attempt of the kind. General Prescott commanded the British forces in Newport, R. I., and went for the summer to a fine house some five miles out of the city. Colonel Wm. Barton, knowing this, decided to capture him if possible; and on July 10, 1777, with forty-one comrades, rowed across from Warwick point, on the west shore of Narragansett bay, and reached the house undiscovered. The door of his house was burst in by a negro, who used his head as a battering ram; Prescott was asleep, and awoke to find himself a prisoner. He was not allowed to dress, but in his cloak, with a captor carrying his clothes, was forced to the boat, and taken within the American lines and then to Washington's headquarters in New Jersey. He was exchanged later. The successful capture of General Stoughton by Mosby and his Rangers in March, 1863, was the result of a carefully laid plan. Mosby, with twenty-nine men entered Fairfax Court House, passing themselves off as belonging to the Fifth New York cavalry, and while some of the band attempted to capture Col. Wyndham, the leader went to the house where the general was sound asleep. At the name of Mosby, General Stoughton sat up in bed, wide awake in an instant. "Have you got him?" he asked. "He's got you!" replied Mosby. The prisoner was taken to General Fitzhugh Lee's headquarters, from the very midst of a camp in which lay several thousand troops. The attempt to capture Sitting Bull was not made by strategy or trick, our Indian scouts went openly to the chief's tent, any when they tried to arrest the famous Sioux were met with bullets; they returned the fire and kill him, losing some of their own number. Funston's capture of Aguineldo was marked by a well devised plan, involving more danger than that of any other plot except Sergeant Champe's, and requiring longer time and more careful work, with the same caution.

The "Jackass Bill."

The "Jackass" bill has made its appearance in St. Joseph, notes the News. The "Jackass" bill is the name applied to the 1880 series treasury note of the 810 denomination. The government was made the victim of a practical joker in the engraving department and this issue of the said, much-sought-after United States money has become the carrier of a puzzle picture. A reporter was shown one of the bills and it took him several minutes to locate the Jackass. To find him it is necessary to turn the bill upside down and look directly at the American eagle. In its inverted position the eagle becomes a Jackass in perfect outline. The eagle is situated half way between the names of Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer of the United States, and B. K. Bruce, registrar of the treasury.

The bill is one of the most common in circulation. Just how the peculiar picture was placed on the bill is not known, but a story, said to come from Washington, has it that an Englishman, an engraver in the employ of the bureau of engraving, was discharged, and he produced the eagle jackall by deft handling of the bill plate then in course of creation. From an artistic point of view the work is excellent. The head and neck of the eagle, which have a peculiar twist, furnish the head of the jackall. The light shadow at the base of the wing becomes a perfect eye and the thighs of the eagle form the ears.

Order of Buffaloes.

The Order of Exalted Buffaloes was started in the bar under the house of representatives in Washington by some newspaper correspondents who had visited the city of Buffalo in 1900 to look over the site chosen for the Pan-American exhibition. Elliott Woods, superintendent of the National Capitol, claims the credit of having offered the suggestion, which was taken up by the Gridironers, fed, watered, nursed and developed into the order, which has to-day no less than 200,000 members.

The order of Buffaloes is responsible for the startling increase in the number of left-handed men. Whereas, a year ago nearly all men lifted a glass to their right with their right hands, today the great majority use their left. This is a rule of the order, and its infraction is visited with severe penalties. Any Buffalo catching another drinking from a glass held in the right hand is privileged to exclaim "Buffalo!" whereupon the culprit is required to treat at the bar every member of the heard who happens to be within the sound of his voice. In some herds a fine of 11 cents is also imposed for each violation, the money thus collected being devoted to charity.

Cake Twenty-five Years Old.

When William Talbot and Miss Lydia Stoothoff, both of Greenwich, Connecticut, were married twenty-five years ago, instead of cutting their wedding cake and distributing pieces to their friends, they had a large vessel made, in which they placed the huge fruit cake, and then soldered on a cover. About fifty of their relatives gathered at the home, in Port Chester, last Thursday night to help them celebrate their silver wedding anniversary, and the chief attraction of the feast was the large fruit cake, baked by Mrs. Talbot's mother in March, 1876. When the pan was opened and the cake was cut it was pronounced to be in a fine state of preservation and remarkably fresh. —Sweet Springs Herald.

For Public Decency.

Low cut bodices are permitted, but pictures of the lower limbs of theatrical girls are henceforth forbidden to be seen on the bill boards of Jersey City, N. J. This action was recently taken by the city authorities as a result of many complaints of the daring poster displays. Bill posters acting under police authorities pasted blank papers over the lower limbs of all the posters in the town.

An Old Citizen Gone.

I. O. Sailor, one of Montgomery City's oldest and most highly respected citizen died at his late home, near the college school building, Monday, April 9, at 7:30 p. m. Mr. Sailor had been in failing health for several months past and only recently made a trip to Colorado Springs, thinking the change of climate would benefit his health, but it did not and he returned after being out there but a short time. He was able to be up and attend to the ordinary duties at his home and talked cheerfully with his son only a few minutes before his death. W. O. Sailor his son had just left his father and gone to his home when he was called up by telephone to summons a doctor. Dr. Graves arrived soon after, but could do nothing and shortly after Mr. Sailor died.

I. O. Sailor was born in this county in 1835 and was the oldest of the family of five boys; I. O., George, Williams, Alvin and Milton. His wife was Miss Sabina Peveler, sister of Jabe and W. C. Peveler of this place.

Mr. Sailor had three children, Mrs. J. W. Norman, of Barton county, Mo., John D. Sailor, of Callaway county, and W. O. Sailor of this city, who was a partner with his father in business here.

Mr. Sailor was not a member of any church but was a firm believer in the Christian religion as taught by the Primitive Baptists. He was a Mason, the Lodge of this city and Wellsville had charge of his funeral. Rev. C. A. Mitchell conducted short services at the house after which the Masonic Lodge took charge of the services and the interment at the city cemetery.

I. O. Sailor was a worthy, upright citizen and had a wide circle of friends who mourn his sudden demise. The Tribune extends sympathy to the stricken family in their sore bereavement.

Caught in R. R. Wreck.

C. F. Brown, a young man about 22 years old, son of Tom Brown of this city, was caught in a railroad wreck on the Rock Island, near Wichita, Kansas, last Sunday night and nearly crushed to death. Tom Brown left here in response to a telegram, Monday morning, and reached his son's bedside Tuesday morning. The young man's injuries were of such a nature that one leg had to be amputated at the knee, and he was otherwise crushed about the head and was not expected to live.

Law Office Removed.

H. Christy Clark has moved his law office from the court house to a room next door to Dr. Grave's office, in the Chadwick block, second floor.

Gilliland--Travis.

Mr. Leslie Gilliland, of near Wellsville, and Miss Aleta Travis, of Wellsville, were married at the Montgomery House in this city, at 7:30 p. m., last Monday. Rev. R. S. Duncan, of this city, officiating.

The young couple came down from Wellsville on the afternoon train accompanied by a few friends and went at once to the Hotel, where the bride and her friends remained till the groom had secured the necessary papers and a minister, when at 7:30 the ceremony was performed by Rev. Duncan that made them husband and wife.

Mr. Gilliland is a son of Wm. Gilliland of near Wellsville and the bride is the daughter of Mrs. Travis, one of the lady teachers in the Wellsville public school.

The happy couple returned to their home Monday evening on the "Com" accompanied by the best wishes of their many friends in this city.

Pastor Called.

Rev. J. E. Kerr, of Fulton, has been called to the pastorate of the First Presbyterian church at this and Benton City. Rev. Kerr is expected to move here about the first of May and will occupy the house formerly owned by Mrs. Bradley, near Dr. Crockett's home.

Election for School Commissioner.

Up to last Monday, there had been received by the county clerk, reports from 45 of the 80 districts in the county. Adding to these the vote from Montgomery City and Wellsville the result stands as follows:

J. W. Davis - 1107
J. W. Duclap - 307

Davis' majority in the 47 districts heard from is 800. If this proportion holds in the other 33 districts it will give Davis a majority of about 1500 votes.

The election returns were slow in getting in last week, but as far as they were received at Mexico, they showed that county school supervisor in Audrain county last and that J. N. Cross was elected county school commissioner. The votes, show that Audrain county does not believe in superintending her schools.

Miss Helen Baker came down from Wellsville Saturday morning and remained over Sunday the guest of Miss Iva Hensley, leaving Monday for her home about five miles west of town. Miss Helen has been primary teacher in the Wellsville public school for the past two years and has given most general satisfaction. We are proud of her success as a graduate of Montgomery High school.
